

Instructions for Authors

The Frontiers of North East Asian Studies (hereinafter referred to as “FES”), a leading general interest journal in North East Asian regional studies, publishes broad range of research in all relevant fields within this region, including, but not limited to, East Asian politics, environmental changes in North East Asia, political theory, international relations, economic analysis, comparative politics and public policy. We are pleased to have contributions from researchers all over the world.

1. Papers must contain original unpublished work and be written in English.
2. Papers should be submitted to henshu-e@anears.net (MS Word compatible required. In the email subject line, please type “FES submission”).
3. Manuscripts should be typewritten on one side of the paper only, double-spaced with wide margins. All pages should be numbered consecutively and title and subtitle should be short.
4. We strongly encourage authors to submit manuscripts that are under 15,000 words including references, tables, figures and acknowledgement.
5. References, tables and figures should be in separate pages at the end of the manuscripts.
6. Footnotes should be consecutively numbered by the Arabic numbers and kept to a minimum.
7. The FES employs double-blind reviews. Therefore authors should remove all self-identification information from the manuscript except the first page. The first page of the manuscript must contain the following information only:
  - A) the title
  - B) the name(s) and institutional affiliation(s) of the author(s)
  - C) the address for editorial correspondence including e-mail address
  - D) an abstract of not more than 150 words
8. The editors make all the final decisions upon the advice of the two reviewers. The manuscript failing to fit the purpose and academic goals of the FES might not be sent out for review.
9. All copyrights are held by the FES and the Association for Northeast Asian Regional Studies. No part of the publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means without written permission by the FES and the association. For copyright permission, please contact the managing editor of the FES.
10. Notes and bibliography should be followed by the Chicago Manual of Style.
